

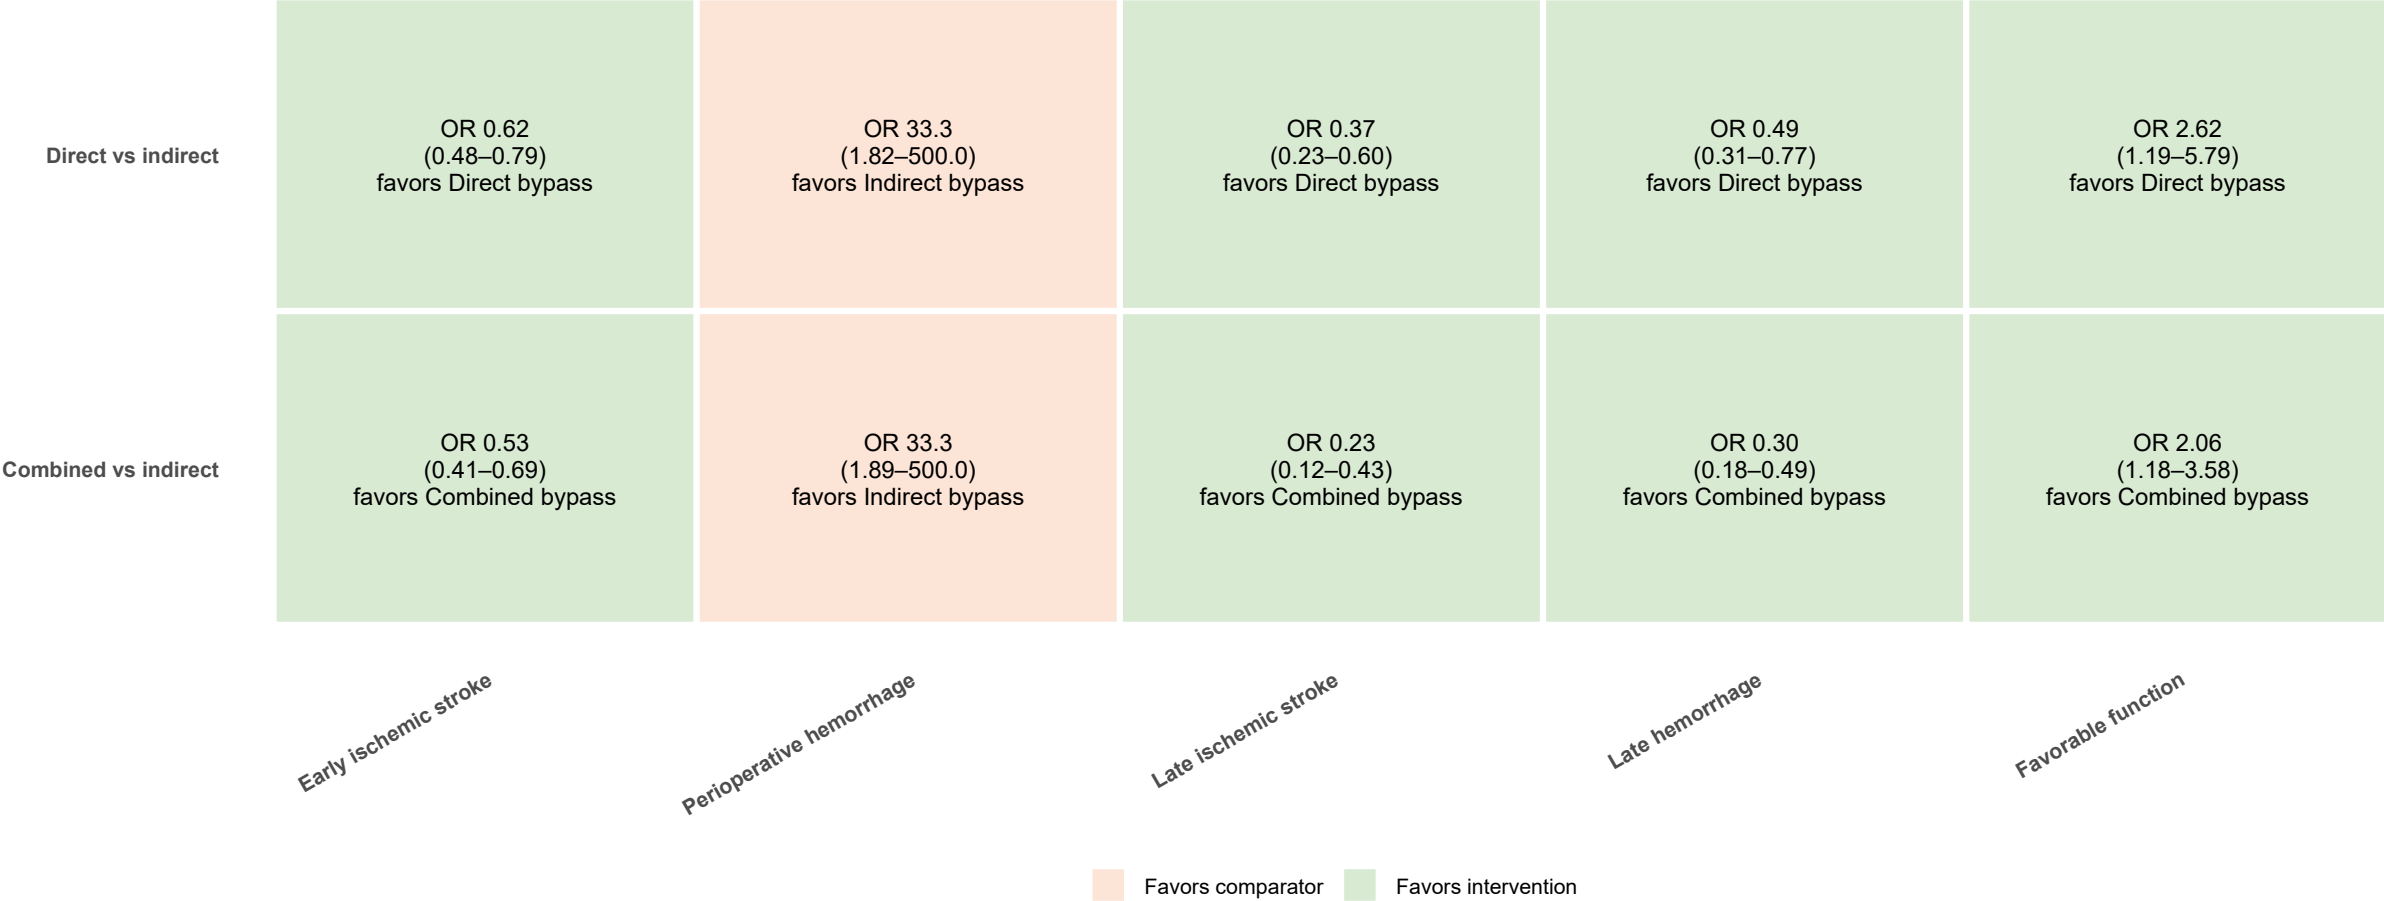

Figure 4. Event-specific trade-off between immediate-flow and indirect strategies
Adult comparative review anchors show that early ischemic and late clinical signals can favor direct/combined bypass while perioperative hemorrhage favors indirect bypass

Effect estimates are shown in canonical row orientation. Early-hemorrhage ORs are reciprocals of source-reported indirect-versus-direct/combined estimates; no umbrella-level pooling was performed.