

Figure 5. From technical success to patient-important recovery
Angiographic and hemodynamic signals should not be interpreted as proven surrogates for stroke prevention, function, cognition, or quality of life

